CHARACTER AND FITNESS

Please note, because of the high ethical standards to which lawyers are held, the failure to disclose an act or event is often more significant and leads to more serious consequences than the act or event itself. Failure to provide truthful and complete answers, or failure to inform the Admission Office of any changes to your answers, may result in revocation of admission or disciplinary action by the Law School, or denial of permission to practice law by the state in which you seek admission.

If you are admitted to the College of Law, this type of information and additional information concerning your moral character and fitness to practice law may be required by the state bar in the state in which the applicant intends to practice law. Every applicant should secure state specific information regarding the character and fitness requirements to the relevant state bars.
